they will enter into and bring improvement to the whole range of attire for the street. The evil has been so monstrous that it is working its own cure, nor can I suppose that any lady who sees a relief from a train which she is forced to hold up, with frozen, crippled fingers, will hasten to seek that relief, and I do not fear to prophecy that ere very long we will see these short costumes made up in handsome materials. Summer dresses will share largely in the improvement, as by the coming of spring, these new ideas will have fully penetrated. At present, we have invested so heavily in trains, that we must wear them out or go into bankruptey, but in choosing costumes on the change of season we will be free. Short skirts, moreover, cannot be very tightly tied back, and once again, a woman may hope for comparatively tree use of her with gratings in it exactly like these,

STYLISH NOVELTIES. The Elfride polonaise is a stylish model for a dinner or reception dress, but if one should prefer a basque, the Delphine may be suggested, and this is especially adopted to the Honora overskirt. Last fall, Judge Hilton, in the interests of Mrs. A. T. Stewart, assumed control of the Metropolitan Hotel, and in doing so, called to his aid Mr. Henry Clair, manager of the celebrated Grand Union, Saratoga. First in the way of improvement, has been a thorough rea great place of resort for young men turnishing, accomplished in the richest materials, combined with the most refined and beautiful taste. Simultaneously also, the cuisine has been perfected, while rates have been reduced, so that we now find in this truly elegant establishment, the usual combination of first class fare, fine surroundings, and moderate prices. These advantages are of ourse due to the fact that A T. Stewart & Co. possess tacilities unattainable by smaller capitalists, and now that this great firm has taken possession, the Metropolitan may be regarded as the richly, so abundantly provided with hotel of the city. Not only the comfort, out the security of guests is vigilantly grand and attractive. Yet, year after ooked after, for even by day, special watchmen are employed, while at night each floor is patrolled.
